November 9, 2015

Dear Graduate Students, Postdocs, and Faculty,

UNC Research, the College of Arts & Sciences, and Diversity and Multicultural Affairs are pleased to announce that the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill is now a member of the National Center for Faculty Development & Diversity. This membership is a significant accomplishment for Carolina and symbolizes the university’s commitment to Inclusive Excellence. As a member of the NCFDD, Carolina’s diverse cadre of graduate students, postdocs, and faculty will have access to resources and support in the form of webinars, forums, mentoring, and other materials that assist with navigating academia.

The NCFDD is a highly regarded center with a national reputation and success record for supporting faculty members throughout their careers, towards accomplishing developmental career milestones such as securing postdoc appointments and achieving promotion and tenure. This effort aligns with Carolina’s mission to “serve as a center for research, scholarship, and creativity and to teach a diverse community”. We are excited about this new endeavor and encourage you to take advantage of the resources.

If you are interested in learning more about or connecting directly with the resources available through the NCFDD, please visit http://diversity.unc.edu/ncfdd. To activate your membership, follow the instructions listed on the site or you may also reference the membership flyer.

Taffye Benson Clayton, EdD
Associate Vice Chancellor and Chief Diversity Officer
Diversity and Multicultural Affairs

Barbara Entwisle, PhD
Vice Chancellor for Research
Kenan Distinguished Professor

Karen Gil, Ph.D.
Dean, College of Arts & Sciences